Have You Done Your Duty?

THE polls opened this morning at seven o'clock, and will close when the clock strikes six. If any of our readers have not deposited a ballot in favor of perpetual Union and lasting Peace, when these words fall under their eyes, let them hasten to perform that sacred duty, if it is not too late.

On Which Side is the Almighty?

Just before the October elections Mr. George H. Pendleton, despite the exigencies of the canvass at home, made a tour through Illinois, enacting the role of a prophet.

Will God give them the power?

Will God give them the power? Will the Almighty entrust to the tender mercies of the Democratic party the future of this great republic and the permanent welfare of the human race throughout the world?

CONGRESSMEN TO BE ELECTED.

Amid the excitement of a Presidential contest we have forgotten that a Congressional election takes place in nearly all the States of the Union, and that on it hangs the complexion of the next House of Representatives.

THE "SATURDAY REVIEW," noted for its hostility to the North, is forced by considerations of fairness to state the fearful Camilla tragedy, and from its article the following paragraph is taken:

"In a riot which lately occurred at a small town in Georgia, a body of negroes, who had been incited by two or three white demagogues to hold a political meeting, were attacked and maltreated by the inhabitants of the place with extreme ferocity.

VOTER ONCE.

The polls close at six o'clock. From five to six there is always a crowd, so that at the hour of closing it is rare that some one is not excluded.

BEFORE YOU DIE TO-DAY VOTE FOR GRANT.

In years to come, if you have not done so, you will regret your mistake in opposing the greatest general of the age.

smothered but for a time. The crime of treason had been too high-handed, the hypocrisy of our people had been too defiant, to be atoned for by a petty scourging by the hand of war.

And now, shall all this blood, and toll, and we go for naught except to form the framework of history? Shall the tribulations of the nation be in vain? Shall the fruits of victory be surrendered? We have faith in humanity; we advocate liberty and equality for all, as we demand it for ourselves; we believe in the justice and mercy of God, and in the immutability of the laws by which He governs our race and controls the destinies of nations; and we answer—No!

A British Opinion of Reverdy.

MR. REVERDY JOHNSON'S after-dinner performance since he has been in England as the representative of the United States Government, and the happy and forgiving state of mind which he has exhibited towards Laird, the Alabama builder, and other British Copperheads, has not only disappointed all the expectations which were formed with regard to him, but sensible men of all opinions see that his indiscreet course is likely to bring about the very state of things which he seems most anxious to avoid, by arousing and strengthening the anti-British feeling which exists in this country.

BEFORE YOU DIE TO-DAY VOTE FOR GRANT.

In years to come, if you have not done so, you will regret your mistake in opposing the greatest general of the age.

The Privilege of Voting. It is a grand thing to be an American citizen. It is a privilege of which any one might well be proud. It is a dignity which shields a man from wrong and oppression, makes him an equal in the decision of the national policy, and ennobles him, as the order of the Golden Fleece ennobled the aristocrat of the fifteenth century.

We believe that this privilege is considered sacred, and will be to-day enjoyed by every one to whom it belongs. We do not envy, we cannot respect, the man who will remain away from the polls when he has a right to be there, and has a duty to perform by making his influence as a good citizen felt.

Viewing, then, this privilege in the light of a patriotic duty, we call on all good citizens to vote for Grant, and vote at once. It is something which twenty years from now they will be proud of. The old men among us who voted for General Jackson look upon it as the crowning political event of their individual lives.

THE SOUTH.

What Southerners Mean by Accepting the Situation.

EX-GOVERNOR WATTS, of Alabama, has written a letter discussing the binding force of the oath in that State under the new Constitution. In that letter he says:— "Under the Constitution we have a right to change it, or to take the steps pointed out in it to change it. To attempt to change it would not, therefore, be a violation of the oath, either legally or morally. Under it we have the power to deprive any person of rights, provided we do not do so 'on account of color, race, or previous condition.'"

In saying we "accept the civil and political equality of all men," do we declare that all men are equal in civil and political rights? No; we simply "accept" it—that is, we accept the results of the war. Did we, who believed in the right of a State to secede, have our opinions changed by the events of the war? No! We were overpowered by the arms of the United States, and we "accepted" as one of the truths settled by the arbitrament of the sword that a State has no right to secede. Did we change our opinions as to the power of Congress, or the President by proclamation, to abolish slavery? No; we agreed to "accept" the abolition of slavery as one of the facts settled by the arbitrament of the sword. We took an oath to support the Constitution of the Confederate States. Did we violate our oath by accepting and acquiescing in the destruction of the Confederate Constitution and Government? I apprehend no one would so contend. So we "accept" the civil and political equality of all men. How long? Only until we have power to change this Constitution, which declares it—only so long as this Constitution is binding on us. By its own terms we have a right "at all times" to change it in the mode itself declares.

How long do we agree not to deprive one class of men, "on account of color, race, or previous condition," of privileges and immunities enjoyed by any other class of men? Only so long as this Constitution is binding on us—only until we can change it by exercising "the inherent right of every free people to change their form of government," which right we exercise "at all times," in the mode prescribed by the Constitution itself.

Very respectfully, yours, T. H. WATTS.
